Sustainable food systems and women empowerment through women’s access to and control over land

Dr. Babette Wehrmann
Women are not property but LAND is property that Women can own.

KENYA LAND ALLIANCE

ENGENDER THE NATIONAL LAND POLICY NOW!
Women can own land!

Why does it matter?

Coordinated action – integrated approaches

Production and Harvest:
- Diversification
  - Nutritious food, mixed cropping, resource management

Post harvest:
- Processing, storage, packaging, transport, food safety, markets, marketing, trade, retailing, food price incentives, taxation

Consumption:
- Rights, labelling, safety nets, education, water and hygiene, food safety

Cross-cutting issues: Women’s Empowerment / Nutrition Education

Enabling environment: Economic, social, cultural, ecological and physical environment, enabling policies, participatory, inclusive, accountable and transparent food governance
The role of women’s land rights in nutrition systems

Women cultivate the land. In many countries they are the primary food producers.

But:
Do they own the land?
Do they decide what they grow on the land?
Can they bequeath the land?
Do they get compensated, if the land is given to someone else?
The role of women’s land rights in nutrition systems

Women have a right to use the land.

But:
They often don’t have the right to manage the land.
They often don’t have the right to generate income from the land.
They often don’t have the right to transfer the land.
They often don’t have the right to exclude others from the use of the land.
They often don’t have the right to compensation.

Ownership is not all that matters. Land use rights and the right to control outputs are of equal importance. Many women depend on access to public land for the collection of firewood, medical herbs, forests fruits, water...

But: Public land is most likely be given away for investment.

VGGT – key guidelines on women’s land rights
Women’s land rights in the SDGs

• Goal 1: End poverty in all its forms everywhere

By 2030, ensure that all men and women, in particular the poor and the vulnerable, have equal rights to economic resources, as well as access to basic services, ownership and control over land and other forms of property, inheritance, natural resources, appropriate new technology and financial services, including microfinance.

(poverty reduction argument)
Women’s land rights in the SDGs

• Goal 2: End hunger, achieve food security and improved nutrition and promote sustainable agriculture

By 2030, double the agricultural productivity and incomes of small-scale food producers, in particular women, indigenous peoples, family farmers, pastoralists and fishers, including through secure and equal access to land, other productive resources and inputs, knowledge, financial services, markets and opportunities for value addition and non-farm employment

(efficiency argument)
Women’s land rights in the SDGs

• Goal 5: Achieve gender equality and empower all women and girls

Undertake reforms to give women equal rights to economic resources, as well as access to ownership and control over land and other forms of property, financial services, inheritance and natural resources, in accordance with national laws

(equity argument)
Measures to improve women’s tenure security

- Ensuring equal tenure rights
- Gender-responsive policies and laws
- Gender equitable implementing agencies
- Gender-responsive technical procedures
- Legal and technical assistance for women
- Gender targeted information/communication
- Gender-sensitive monitoring
- Gender-responsive grievance mechanisms
- Gender equitable dispute resolution

Measures for advocacy and empowerment

- Pressure governments to repeal laws that discriminate against women and to adopt new laws that protect women’s land and property rights
- Make the link that land rights for women result in improved well-being, ... etc.
- Conduct assessment of the power relations between women and men in society, at family and household level...
- Ensure that female right holders understand their rights and know how to claim them
- Encourage and help women to assert their rights to land and property
- Participate in community mapping and documentation
- Undertake a review of available gender-responsive formal and informal grievance and dispute resolution mechanisms
- Promote women’s equal tenure rights in international law
